

Visitors crossing at San Ysidro from the U.S. to Mexico and need FMM tourist permits must stop at the El Chaparral Immigration Office. See below for directions to cross at this border and how to get to the immigration office to get your FMM stamped.

This is the aerial view of how to cross and how to get to the immigration office. Notice you will need to be in the far-right lane to get to the office.

Interstates 5 and 805 will drop you right off into the border crossing. Reminder to make your way to the far-right lane so that you can easily merge over to the Immigration office.

When in the far-right lane you will see this fence, on the other side is the immigration office. Head back behind this fence.

Once behind the fence in the above photo, park and enter the blue building. Each of your team members will need to go as they must provide their passport for proof. Walk all the way through the building and after the doors you will be in an outside foyer area. To the left will be an Immigration officer who will stamp your FMM forms. After the forms are stamped, you can proceed to cross the border.
